

88 MINUTES 4 PAIX

The AEIA Gold Tier Viewer's Guide

Welcome to the official curatorial blueprint for the 88 Minutes 4 Paix archive. This guide was constructed during the PN4PM GEMasterClass Pilot to showcase the intersection of global peace-building, ecological stewardship, and ethical media.

Below are the 5 authenticated segments that earned this broadcast the AEIA Gold Tier Recognition. Use these timestamps and audits to navigate the core of the "Thinking Cooperatively" model. Click any timestamp to jump directly to that segment in the broadcast.

1. Legacy Alignment

[\[00:27:30\]](#) – [\[00:36:13\]](#)

The Audit: Anna Wrathman, Executive Director of the Jane Goodall Institute, roots the broadcast in Dr. Goodall's enduring legacy. She emphasizes that everyday grassroots actions are the foundation of global environmental peace, establishing the ethical true north.

2. Intergenerational Synergy

[\[00:46:18\]](#) – [\[01:03:04\]](#)

The Audit: A powerful sequence bridging generations. It transitions from the Friends of Clearwater honoring Pete Seeger's historical advocacy straight into the Future Generations awards, passing the baton to emerging youth voices like Hudson Henley and Mia Narciso.

3. Cultural & Environmental Stewardship

[\[01:06:42\]](#) – [\[01:12:00\]](#) & [\[05:59:52\]](#) – [\[06:03:32\]](#)

The Audit: Spanning the broadcast, this theme links human survival with cultural expression. It highlights efforts to bring clean water to Tanzania and is complemented by the Oriental Arts Foundation, proving a Peace Economy requires both ecological and cultural stewardship.

4. Dynamic Compassion (Ahimsa)

[01:12:45] – [01:24:07]

The Audit: Anakah shares the deeply personal story of her daughter, Marita. This segment grounds the massive global climate discourse by returning focus to the sacredness of individual life and grassroots compassion.

5. Thinking Cooperatively (Data Integration)

[00:13:08] – [00:13:26] & [00:55:06] – [00:55:29]

The Audit: Transparent check-ins verifying the broadcast's distribution across platforms like the 'We Don't Have Time' network. This step validates the technological infrastructure that scales the peace-building message to millions.
